LIONS PLAYGROUND SOON INSTALLED

This past winter the Raymond Lions Club has been working on a playground to be installed in the park west of the tennis court.

A great deal of preparatory work has been accomplished, and a canvass of the business section made for equipment to go into the playground.

The playground will be equipped with swings, totters, slides, sand piles, a wading pool and all the necessary to make it an ideal spot for the children.

Work of installation is expected to go forward in the very near future.

The addition of the playground to the park will add greatly to the value of the park as a community centre in the summer time and will detract from the general drabness of that corner of the block from the westerly approach.

Watch for the opening date sometime in June.

BORN—To Mrs. Margaret Jessop Tuesday May 13th, a daughter.

Quarterly conference sessions were held May 10 and 11 in the Raymond Stake House with delegates from Salt Lake being Apostles Benson and Romney.

Record crowds of over 800 attended each session, people coming from all over the stake and also outside stakes.

At the 9 o'clock session of the Priesthood, music was furnished by the Boys Choir under the direction of Gerald Gibb. In the Mothers and daughters meeting at the same time a Girls Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Hudson rendered special numbers. Mrs. Ruth Salmon's Girls Chorus was in attendance at the regular Sunday morning session at 10 o'clock and the First Ward Choir, under the baton of Kenneth Stone furnished the music at the afternoon meeting. The evening session featured the music of Ruth Salmon's Girl Chorus.

Highlighting the Conference session the afternoon session under the direction of Apostle Benson, was given over to the re-organization of the Stake with President T. George Wood and his councillors Heber F. Allen and Melvin T. King retiring after 11 years of service in leading the Taylor Stake. Replacing Mr. Wood and his councillors, James H. Walker, prominent business man, and former Bishop of the Raymond Second Ward was sustained as the new President of the Taylor Stake with John L. Allen as 1st Councillor and L.L. Palmer as 2nd Councillor. The change came as a new policy of the Church is put into effect to change and share the leadership in the stake more often. Wm. A. Anderson will continue his duties as Stake Clerk.

Earl Zemp and Amy Allen were sustained as Presidents of the YM and YWMA respectively, replacing John L. Allen and Fanny Walker in those positions. The appointment of Councillors to assist them will be effected later.

Both Apostles spoke in all three sessions and brought messages of faith and direction from the leaders of the Church in Salt Lake. The inspiring sermons were much enjoyed and the music furnished by the choirs and chorus, with over 300 participants was indeed a credit to the conductors.

Miss Barbara King, age nine days, arrived in Raymond Tuesday, May 13th, to make her future home with Mr. and Mrs. Shirley W. King.

Lions Will Sponsor Junior Baseball Club

At the last regular bi-monthly meeting of the Raymond Lions Club a motion was passed to support the Junior Baseball Club again this year. The Junior Baseball players are anxious to get going and have some up and coming ball players on the list.

Don B. V. Heninger was appointed to act as Manager with Bert Poxelson Secretary.

The boys made a line showing last year and the Lions Club ask that the community give these boys all the support a fine team needs.

Coaching these boys has fallen to the lot of Cliff Nalder, an old time star of the ball diamond and an excellent ball player, having spent many seasons playing baseball.

These boys will bear watching and no doubt will take their place at the top of the league.

Watch for dates of scheduled games and turn out to support the boys.

Other business of the meeting was the appointment of a nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for the election, to take place in June.

Trends In Immigration

INTEREST IN IMMIGRATION has increased greatly since the war, not only in Canada, but in many countries. Six years of warfare left the necessity of rebuilding many thousands of homes, factories and stores in those areas which had been laid waste. Elsewhere, because of the almost complete direction of manpower and materials to meet the requirements of the war, there was built up an accumulated need for the many commodities which were not produced during the war years. A third condition, putting added demands on production is the tendency towards the raising of general living standards and a consequent increased demand for many products. All this has created unprecedented needs for skilled workers, and has had a marked effect upon the post-war attitude toward immigration.

Labor Office Issues Report

The International Labor Office recently issued a very interesting report on immigration in which an analysis was made of present trends in this matter. The conclusion is drawn that we are unlikely to again see any great immigration movements such as took place between Europe and this continent early in the present century. It appears that while many countries are now interested in receiving immigrants they are interested in taking in only small and selected groups, usually with preference for skilled workers who fill some specific need for labor in the country which they enter. This is described by the International Labor Office as a short-term solution which is being used by many governments while more permanent policies are being formulated.

Policy Changes Are Predicted

It is pointed out by the writer of the report, that although present policies will in all probability be revised there will be no vast movements of population such as have taken place in the past, since there are no longer many great unoccupied areas to be settled. Mexico and South America are now the only places which are open to settlers in large numbers, and in South America there is a marked preference for skilled technicians. Australia and New Zealand have at present restricted immigration regulations and South Africa, although she has room for many new citizens, will not admit unskilled workers. The last area from which immigrants may be sought in any number appears to be Italy, and Britain, Belgium, France and Sweden are securing workers from there to help with the gigantic post-war tasks. From all this it is clear that policies on immigration have changed in recent years and that the present tendency is toward the movement of small and selected groups rather than the mass migration of earlier times.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Old Rastus settled himself in his chair and addressed his wife: "Yes, sah, Gal, dat boss done cut wages half in two again. Some ob de boys is kinkin' might' pow'ful 'bout it. Way I figers it—half ob sumpin' is better'n all ob nuffin'."

They were entertaining the vicar to lunch, and the guest remarked to the small boy of the house: "Don't you ever say prayers before your meals, my child?" "Oh, no," said the child. "Dad says our cook's pretty reliable."

"Portah, portah! Come hesh at once!" cried an English woman from a train window to a Scots porter in that aggravated accent that always seems to put a Scotsman's back up.

"What d'ye want?" asked the porter.

"Portah, I've lost my luggage." "Then," he said, turning round and strolling away, "for what wad ye be wanting a porter?"

"May I print a kiss on your cheek?" he asked. She nodded her sweet permission. Then they went to press—And I rather guess—They printed a large edition.

Teacher: "Who was the greatest of all inventors?" Student: "Edison." Teacher: "Why?" Student: "He invented the phonograph so people would sit up all night and use his electric lights."

A golfing novice had driven his ball along the fairway, but unfortunately it disappeared down a rabbit hole. "Which club will you take now?" asked his caddy, with a sly smile. The novice sighed wearily as he scratched his head in doubt. Then at last he asked hopefully: "Have you got one shaped like a ferret?"

Two old settlers, confirmed bachelors, sat in the backwoods. The conversation drifted from politics to cooking.

"I got one o' them there cookery books once, but I never could do nothing with it," said one. "You've hit it. Every one of them recipes began in the same way—'Take a clean dish.' And that settled me."

Five-year-old William had been taught that Sunday is not a day for play. One Sunday morning his mother found him sailing his toy boat in the bathtub.

"William," she said, "don't you know it is wicked to sail boats on Sunday." "Don't get excited Mother," he replied. "This isn't a pleasure trip. This is a missionary boat going to Africa."

She was pretty and ambitious and had studied the matrimonial problem to a nicety. "Yes, I suppose I shall wed eventually," she said, "but the only kind of masculine nuisance that will suit me must be tall and dark, with classical features. He must be brave, yet gentle. He must be strong—a lion among men, but a knight among women."

That evening a bow-legged, lath-framed, chinless youth, wearing flannel bags and smoking a cigarette that smelt worse than a burning boot, rattled on the back door, and the girl knocked four tumblers and a cut-glass dish off the sideboard in her haste to let him in.

TAKES STEPS TO HALT HIGH SCHOOL MARRIAGE

WHITEHAVEN, Tenn.—The sudden blossoming of too many romances into marriages at the Whitehaven High school has provoked an administrative ban on co-educational lingering, visiting, eating and, of course, marrying.

Principal Fred Elliott said he had issued a circular letter to the school's 700 students declaring that marriage will mean indefinite suspension and that five-day suspensions will be slapped on those guilty of:

"Eating together." "Lingering in the cafeteria after eating is at an end."

"Walking as couples on the campus." "Visiting in home rooms."

Elliott said each of the students was required to sign the letter which complained "marriage apparently has become an epidemic."

Since September there have been eight student marriages at the school.

RATHER GOOD IDEA Down in Tennessee—which you will doubtless recognize as the native state of Sam McGee—they are celebrating "Honor the Mule" Week. This is a very nice idea says T. D. F., in Ottawa Citizen. We don't have mules up here, of course, but why could we not have an "Honor the Horse" Week, instead of dedicating only one day to the Old Horse and calling it Father's Day as we do now?

Alberta Pilot Tests British Jet Planes

HUCCLECOTE, Gloucs., England.—Successful test flying is "just a case of watching your P's and Q's—in other words, learning to walk before running," says Canadian-born W. A. Waterton, one of Britain's outstanding test pilots.

"The cause of most accidents in test flying is that people become too impatient," said Waterton in an interview at the Morston Vulture Air-drome, one of the fields over which he puts jet aircraft through their paces for the Gloster Aircraft Company.

Six feet tall, broad-shouldered and unmarried, Waterton at 30 knows what it is to travel almost as fast as sound. Last September, at Tangmere, Sussex, he travelled at 614 miles an hour when a three-man R.A.F. speed team aimed at a world record. It is held by Group Capt. E. M. Donaldson, who reached 616 miles.

Last January, however, Waterton whipped a jet-propelled plane from Paris to London—208 miles—at 618.4 miles an hour.

Born in Edmonton, Waterton was taken to Camrose, Alta., when only two years old. After attending local schools he completed his education at Royal Military College, Kingston, where he was welterweight boxing champion. He graduated in 1937, and came to England to join the R.A.F. two years later when he was unable to win a commission in the Canadian Army.

His service in the R.A.F. is commemorated by a four-inch long sandy mustache that takes a slight curve around his nostrils. "It used to sprout up to here," he said, attacking a finger just under a cheekbone.

He became a member of the 242 Fighter Squadron, largely comprised of Canadians, covered the Dunkerque evacuation and fought through the Battle of Britain. When he was demobilized in October, 1946, he held the rank of squadron leader. But a week later he was back in the air, testing for Gloster.

Although he says "there's nothing in Canada for me in my line," Waterton served a spell as instructor in the Dominion during the war. He was stationed at Penhold, Alta., and Swift Current, Sask., before returning to England to join the R.A.F. sub-sonic sphere unit testing Allied and German planes.

The R.A.F. has offered him a permanent commission but right now he's interested in developing jet aircraft.

STUDENTS SHOOT IT OUT WITH GUNS

HAVANA, Cuba.—Opposing groups of secondary school students, fighting for control of their student's association, shot it out with guns on the corner of Galiano and San Lazaro streets recently.

The only person reported wounded in the mid-town fracas was the proprietor of a nearby grocery store. Three students were said to have been arrested.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

SILENCE: ITS VIRTUE Silence is the element in which great things fashion themselves together; that at length they may emerge, full-formed and majestic, into the delights of life, which they are thenceforth to rule.—Carlyle.

He knows not how to speak who cannot be silent; still less how to act with vigor and decision. Who hastens to the end is silent; loudness is impotence.—Lavater.

There is an eloquent silence: it serves sometimes to approve, sometimes to condemn; there is a mocking silence; there is a respectful silence.—La Rochefoucauld.

No reproof is so potent as the silent lesson of a good example.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Silence is the safest respondent for all the contradiction that arises from impertinence, vulgarity, or envy.

Silence never shows itself to so great an advantage as when it has made the reply to calumny and defamation.—Addison.

MAJ.-GEN. LARSEN TO LEAD EXPEDITION

LONDON.—Maj.-Gen. Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, who will lead the forthcoming Norwegian-Swedish-British expedition to the Antarctic, described the project in an interview as "a combined operation in the spirit of the United Nations."

The expedition is scheduled to start late in 1948 and will cost about £100,000 ($400,000).

Larsen, explorer and wartime chief of the Norwegian air force, is visiting Britain to discuss plans for the expedition with British scientists. He expressed belief the day may come, "probably in the far future," when the 5,000,000 square miles of Antarctic territories will be "a vast, fertile and habitable continent."

He based this theory on climatic changes believed to be taking place at the South Pole.

The expedition will consist of 150 members, most of them scientists from the three countries backing it.

Larsen will stay in Queen Maud Land from November, 1948, to January, 1949, and a group of 12 scientists will stay another nine months to study meteorological conditions.

Landlady Uses Silent Collector

Wall Street Journal tells us there is a lady operating a boarding house down in Alabama who has a simple, silent, but most effective method of collecting money from delinquent boarders.

A new arrival at this lady's establishment noticed at supper that one of the boarders had one fork too many beside his plate, and seemed to be acutely embarrassed over the circumstance.

"Why is he so disturbed over the extra fork?" the new boarder whispered to the gentleman seated beside him.

"Oh, that's how the landlady collects past due board bills," was the laughing explanation. "When she puts that extra implement beside a plate it simply means 'fork over'."

BRITISH LAW IS SURE PROTECTION

The London Daily Mirror says: In this free country a policeman cannot arrest a man or woman unless he gives the true reason for it. He is not entitled to keep the reason to himself. Nor must he give a reason which is not a correct one. The policeman who does this may be liable for false imprisonment. This ruling was given on behalf of the House of Lords recently by Viscount Simon. Lord Simon said that in this country a person was entitled to his freedom and was only required to submit to restraint if he knew in substance, the reason.

ONE ADVANTAGE Advantage of old-fashioned ways is sometimes demonstrated in modern life. Thus, the handsome cab of Victorian times located the driver where it was much harder for the fare to hit him on the head prior to a robbery.

"Desire to Serve-plus Ability."HISTORY OF RAYMOND

By ELIZABETH KING

The weather was ideal and the country was beautiful and green. It looked like a real paradise after the heavy rains of that spring. Further had been there only a few days when he seemed to have a clear vision of what he wished to do and without consultation or fear of the outcome he entered into a contract with the Canadian Northwest Irrigation Company and the Alberta Railway and Irrigation Company to purchase an additional 226,000 acres of land, and build a beet sugar factory, to have the same ready for operations to handle the beet crops of 1903 and keep it in operation for 12 years. This agreement was guaranteed with a pledge of $50,000.

Following the signing of the contract a townsite was located on a vast prairie and named "Raymond" after father's oldest son. Jesse Knight insisted that the town charter contain a forfeiture clause to the effect that if liquor or gambling houses, or places of ill-fame were established on the premises the property holders would forfeit title to the land.

The town of Raymond grew very rapidly for in less than two years there were over 1500 people settled there. Homes were springing up daily and it was difficult to get lumber and material fast enough to meet the demand of the new settlers. The price of lumber was very reasonable selling as low as $14. to $17. per thousand and nearly all houses were constructed of this material.

A church which was built by Jesse Knight and school house were among the first buildings erected. Charley McCarthy and T. O. and L. D. King were among the first to build Mercantile stores. A church organization was perfected and J. Wm. Knight was chosen as the Raymond Ward's first Bishop, with Joseph Bevans and Ephraim Hicks as Councillors.

There was no one out of work in Raymond as the Sugar Factory was under construction and homes, stores and buildings of various kinds were being erected in the new town. Everyone was hopeful and happy. The settlers were largely young couples who had completed college courses in Utah and were anxious to get a good location for a home. A most stimulating atmosphere was prevailed among the people. It was not long before babies began to arrive in the new town; in February 1902, Jessie Nilsson, a girl was born named in honor of the founder and on March 16, 1902, Raymond Holbrook was born and named after the town.

One of the big undertakings was the preparing of the sod lands for beet culture. Three thousand acres had been promised to be ready for planting by Jesse Knight; so he immediately began hiring men with teams and ploughs to do the work, paying them $2.50 per acre for ploughing. As dry weather came on, ploughing got more difficult, and Mr. Knight raised the price to $3.00 per acre on his own volition, and finally was obliged to send his son Ray, to Utah for larger teams and ploughs to help with the work. Ray was only gone away a few weeks when he returned with a train load of heavy horses and equipment and the ploughing was completed on time.

The three thousand acres after being ploughed, were surveyed into ten acre plots and each family was allowed to buy one tract at ten dollars per acre. The terms were liberal, no payment being required for the first three years; at the end of that time father thought they could commence paying from the crops they raised.

Jesse Knight advanced the money to build a big community fence around a large tract of land to protect the crops from being destroyed by the livestock, and in many other ways he was generous to those needing help. He was indeed the poor man's friend.

Pay Holbrook tells of an interesting comment made to him one night as they sat in the big tent at the dining table after the working men had retired: "I wish", said uncle Jesse, "I might go to bed as the men have done, but I cannot until I have something planned for them to do tomorrow. I have tried all my life to keep my plans ahead of my work." The people who were attracted to Raymond were mostly of limited means, and had many difficulties to contend with on that account. The climate was changeable, winters sometimes were so cold and windy that it took a sturdy class of people as most of our Utah people are, to do good pioneering.

It was difficult for the Canadian officials to understand Jesse Knight and his motives. On one occasion, at a meeting of officials, he was asked by them what impelled him to come there to build a sugar factory and spend so much money in that country, and in answer he reached into his pocket and pulled out the proclamation issued by President Lorenzo Snow which he regarded so highly that he carried it around with him, and asked that it be read. After the meeting he said to them: "Gentlemen, this was a direct message to me, and it is also a message to you and to every employer and man of wealth. The men all seemed to be deeply impressed with the proclamation and the sincerity of Jesse Knight in accepting it. (The text of the proclamation was given at the beginning of the previous article.)"

The story of the Knight operations in Canada as told by Mr. Magrath the man with whom he had such extensive business relations, presents an interesting point of view:

"Mr. Knight came up early in the following spring. I happened to meet him on the train in, I believe, April and when we were in the neighborhood of the present town of Raymond, he said something about visualizing a fine settlement there and associated his son's name with it. On the 25 of May he called on me and made a proposal to personally undertake the erection of a beet sugar factory, which was an amazing thing to come from a single individual. Elliot Galt was not in Lethbridge at the time and I felt our English directors would not regard the proposal seriously unless Mr. Knight put up a substantial deposit as a guarantee of good faith. To my request for $50,000 he immediately complied. His proposal called for some amendments which were worked out by Elliot Galt and myself with Mr. Knight in Salt Lake, about the middle of June. It is true our company gave him very substantial land concessions. He undertook to plough during the autumn, 3,000 acres of our lands to be ready for new settlers in the coming season, and the factory was to be completed in time for the manufacture of sugar in the autumn of 1903 as it was.

Lieutenant Governor Forget at Regina, to whom, at his request I sent my file of papers on the second of October, 1903, showing the various steps in bringing about beet sugar culture in southern Alberta, replied: "I have read the whole with much interest and I wonder more than ever at the spirit of enterprise displayed by the promoters—the Knights—in establishment of such an industry in a new country, and I sincerely wish them every possible success." My opinion is that Southern Alberta should never forget what it owed to Jesse Knight, because I happen to know from actual efforts, how impossible it was to get capital interested in a new and sparsely settled country like our northwest until Mr. Knight came along. I question if there would be a sugar beet grown in Alberta today if it were not for Jesse Knight and the good will that existed between his Church leaders and our irrigation company.

Mr. Knight was the most unusual man I ever met, a man of the finest integrity. I would describe him as the poor man's friend. He believed in visions, which I understand is a doctrine of the Mormon Church. He was a mining prospector in Utah and it has been stated that the mine which brought him considerable wealth came to him through a vision in effect that if he had the courage to continue prospecting he would be rewarded, but that he should use his wealth largely for the good of the people, which I believe he did.

The Raymond Sugar Factory was not built as a commercial enterprise so much as for the benefit of the settlers in the surrounding country. I am aware that on one occasion when coming up from the south, he got off at Stirling and while walking around the little settlement he saw some men engaged in drilling for water taking out their equipment. He asked if they had found water and the reply was in the negative. When he wished to know why they were abandoning the hole, the answer was that they had fulfilled their contract with the Northwest Government, and he thereupon undertook to pay them to drill another fifty feet. There are several such unusual acts that I could recite to the credit of Jesse Knight.

As stated by Mr. Magrath the Raymond Sugar Factory was not built as a commercial enterprise so much as a benefit for the settlers of the surrounding country. According to the contract it was to be kept in operation for 12 years. This was done although the factory did not prove to be as great a success as had been hoped for various reasons. At first it seemed more desirable for the settlers to grow wheat and run cattle on the range than to grow sugar beets a process with which most of the farmers were unfamiliar. There was therefore a shortage of sugar beets for the factory. However, the beets produced were rich in saccharine content, and sufficient sugar was produced that when put on the market it antagonized the Vancouver refining interests, which sought to crush the new company by underselling in the localities supplied by the Raymond factory. This unfair competition was soon stopped when it was called to the attention of the Dominion Government which promptly notified the Vancouver interests that they must maintain uniform prices in all localities supplied with

The action of the government was prompted by its desire for the success of the factory as it was the means of developing the country and giving employment to the people. Through its desire for the success of the factory it paid a bonus of 50 cents per hundred pounds of sugar to be divided equally between the beet growers and the factory. It further eliminated all taxes on the plant for the twelve-year period of the contract.

While Jesse Knight did not spend much of his time in Canada during the construction of the Sugar Factory and the settlement of Raymond he was fortunate in having men like Ephraim P. Ellison of Layton Utah, as manager of the Knight Sugar Company, for a number of years. Mr. Ellison's exceptional business ability, good judgement and dependable qualities made him a valuable man. He was always on hand to give his best efforts to the company's interest.

Interests. Another helpful man was ed impossible to get the farmers to James Ririe of Magrath, who looked raise sugar beets in sufficient quantities to make the industry profitable after the sheep industry for the sugar Company. His untiring efforts Shortly after the twelve year period were of great value to the company had expired, therefore the fact in directing the care of some 40,000 head of sheep in a country of cold winters and changing climate. Ray Knight supervised the cattle interests. R.E. Allen who was secretary of the Knight Sugar Company was familiar with the sheep business as well as company affairs, and rendered valuable service in the handling of the company's problems. Mention could be made of many loyal ones in Canada who rallied to the support of the Sugar Company in the raising of Sugar Beets and in other ways. It takes good judgement to cope with such problems as confronted the settlers of Alberta, Canada, but let it be said to the credit of those who have been prudent, that they are prosperous.

Notwithstanding the generosity of the Canadian Government the able management of Ephraim Ellison, Raymond Knight and others and the favorable conditions otherwise, it seems ory was moved to Cornish Utah. The effort however, had not been in vain as after the war, when grain raising, due to drought and falling prices, proved less profitable, the farmers began to irrigate their lands, and clamored for another sugar factory. The Utah-Idaho Sugar Company responded to the appeal, and built a large plant near the site of the first. This was bought out by Vancouver interests and proved so profitable that in 1936 a second factory was built at Picture Butte.

The first church school to be built in Canada was built at Raymond, Alberta, now known as the Knight Academy. For further particulars refer to Encyclopedic History of the Church, by Andrew Jensen, 1841.

"Yes" I answered, "I remember it quite well." "Did you know", he said "that when the old man's back was turned I swiped the quarter out of the wall and we went to town that night and had five glasses of beer out of it. I bet the old man never knew that." He never did. All of which makes clear one thing, boys will be boys, whether they get $1.00 a day or $7.00. The only difference is that they probably did as much or more for the $1.00 they then earned as they would for the much higher pay of today.

Rarely do we ever consider the consequences of our own actions. The Canadian National Railway has been a profitable business during the war it is only a short time since the end of the war and the announcement now appears that the C.N.R. has a deficit of nine millions and looks forward to one somewhere in the neighborhood of 25 or 30 million, probably more, next year. The workers are now making application for additional pay, which on the C.N.R. alone, will amount to $10,500,000. Once granted to the C.N.R. workers it must be granted to the C.P.R. workers.

It is perhaps not a bad guess to point out that in two or three years from now the railways will be considered our major problem. Yet the suggestion is that because the C.P.R. has accumulated certain surplus funds it should live on its fat and not be permitted to raise freight rates.

The ruling passion of the world today is to live on the seed grain, that is, to devour all reserves accumulated by corporations and individuals looking forward to the future.

It was not the spirit of the fathers which established this code. We should be seeking to conserve resources and spending money for that purpose. If we are determined to spend it on the immediate cost of living, the future will be dark indeed.

Dragnet Extended For E. B. Bottles

Posse organize for search in Alberta rural centres.

The dragnet for E. B. Bottles alias "Empties", widened today as search extended to Alberta's many towns and villages.

E. B. Bottles, commonly known as Empty Beer Bottles became the subject of this intensive hunt following disappearance from essential duty in the bottling and brewing industry. Citizens are cooperating in an all-out effort to see that this culprit is brought to justice and returned to work so that the demand for Brewery products can be met.

It is believed that "Empties" may be lying low in basements, closets, attics, garages, or other places about the home, and for this reason, the cooperation of housewives in aiding the search is particularly requested.

CASH REWARD OFFERED

Housewives in cities, towns and villages are urged to search their premises throughout. In the event of apprehension, Deliveries Limited should be notified at once. They have arranged to take "Empties" into custody—pay 20 cents per dozen cash reward on the spot and provide escort to the nearest bottle depot.

Rural citizens who may come across "Empties" can have him escorted, freight collect to the nearest Deliveries Limited depot and cash rewards will be mailed immediately. Depots are located at Camrose, Banff, Calgary, Edmonton, Blairmore, Medicine Hat, Drumheller, and Lethbridge. McLennan is nearest depot for Peace River district.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE MILLING—W. W. Niven, of the Midwest Research Institute, Kansas City, Mo., is operating an experimental plant which mills wheat without rollers and by use of compressed air. Institute heads say that this method may revolutionize the milling industry. Grain in cylinder A is fed by drive B into chamber at C with a stream of compressed air from D. Air fills individual cells within grain, which shoots through nozzle within pipe at C and explodes. Shattered grain streams past valve under Niven's hand and into conical separator E, where it is removed from air stream, then emerges at F. Institute heads say it is possible to completely separate all component parts of grain, germ, husk, bran and flour, by the process.

MILITARY POLICE STILL ON THE LOOKOUT FOR ARMY DESERTERS

OTTAWA.—Military police in Canada and allied military police all over Europe are still on the look-out for 567 Canadian deserters nearly two years after the end of the war with Germany.

Many of them have been "on the loose" since the early days of the arrival in the United Kingdom of Canada's overseas army, although the bulk are missing in Canada. A few are still at large in Europe and are believed to be in countries where Canadians served during the war.

Servicemen classed officially as "deserters" are listed separately from approximately 14,000 men who were conscripted into the services and then deserted before being sent overseas. They are listed on official army records simply as "deemed not to have served."

The difference in classification is that in the case of soldiers, sailors and airmen listed as deserters, certain rehabilitation benefits are still available. In the case of the men now "deemed not to have served", no discharge credits have been or will be available. In other words, the NRMA men who deserted before being shipped overseas were never officially part of the armed forces, and their names have been wiped from the slate of those who did serve.

Army personnel lead the parade of servicemen listed as deserters with 465 unaccounted for. The biggest proportion, 325 soldiers, are listed as having deserted in Canada, with the remainder, 140, listed as missing in Europe. Seventy-five members of the navy are missing and listed as deserters in Canada with only five having disappeared overseas. In the case of the air force, there are 20 members missing in this country and only two still listed in Europe.

There is no question of an amnesty being granted the missing men. When, or if they are found, they will have to stand trial in the usual manner, and accept their punishment which invariably will run to long-term jail sentences. In the case of soldiers, sailors and airmen apprehended overseas, they would be returned to Canada for trial and imprisonment.

BRIEF CRITICISM OF HITLER VERY TRUE

The criticism of Hitler by Dr. Hugo Eckener, famous German designer, builder and flier of airships, is a gem of brevity. The elderly scientist remarked:

"When Hitler came to power he was 90 per cent. fool and 10 per cent. criminal, but when he ended he was 90 per cent. criminal and 10 per cent. fool."

That describes a man who tried to set up one people as a master race and who set out to destroy all the rest.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

REVEALS MOST MILK SUPPLIES UNPASTEURIZED

In view of the scientific fact that pasteurization makes milk fit for human consumption, it is an appalling revelation that of 366 municipalities reporting in a recent survey in the eight provinces outside Ontario, only 13 per cent. were revealed to have compulsory pasteurization by-laws. Ontario was not included because it is the only province in the Dominion which has a province-wide law in force.

Saskatchewan headed the individual provinces in the matter of cities and towns reporting safe milk by-laws, 20 per cent. being in this category. Quebec was next with 15 per cent. reporting compulsory pasteurization by-laws.

Of the 366 reporting municipalities, 90, or approximately 25 per cent., reported their entire supply was unpasteurized. Sixteen revealed that while they had no compulsory by-law their supply was 100 per cent. pasteurized. Forty-one municipalities, including 15 in Quebec and eight in Alberta, revealed that 90 per cent. or more of their milk supply was pasteurized.

From the results of the survey, it would appear that many thousands of Canadians are drinking raw milk despite the fact that raw milk can be dangerous—despite the fact that milk-borne diseases have caused much needless, killing and crippling illness. Pasteurized milk is the only safe milk.

Canada Sharing In Loran Costs

MONTREAL. — Canada and three other countries signed an agreement to contribute to the international financing of the Loran (long range navigation aid) station at VIK, Iceland, an important link in the chain of stations designed to ensure navigational safety for trans-Atlantic flights over the northern route.

The United States already is a party to the arrangement with Iceland, which also was entered into by the United Kingdom, France and The Netherlands. Operation of the VIK station had been financed in the past by the United States and latterly by the Royal Air Force until a short time ago.

Under the agreement, Canada will bear nine per cent. of the approximately $6,000 monthly cost of operating the VIK station, with Iceland contributing five per cent. and the remainder allocated among the other signatories in agreed proportion based roughly on the use they make of the facilities.

PLENTY OF WORK

The Ottawa Journal tells us the net income of Canadian farmers reached last year a record figure for all time—$1,267,400,000. A very great deal of hard work went into that substantial achievement.

Prospective Canoe Dash Forbidden

OTTAWA. — A prospective canoe dash through the boiling Chaudiere rapids of the Ottawa river by a pair of paddling Indians, was called off after police took a look at the roaring waters, called the attempt "practically suicide" and put a ban on the whole thing.

Not only the police thought the Indians would be risking their lives on an uneven chance of success. It was disclosed that a number of insurance companies had declined to underwrite the lives of the paddlers, 41-year-old Chief Harry Aubin and his 42-year-old brother, Tony, who had volunteered to do it as a stunt for the Montgomery branch of the Canadian Legion.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE HOME RUN

By GROVER HEIMAN

MARY'S eyes had been serious as he turned to go into the clubhouse and he knew she was going to say something and he didn't want to listen, but he waited.

"I wish you would quit baseball and go into business with Father," she said and twisted her gloves in her long fingers.

"We've talked about this before, darling. Hundreds of times. I thought it was a closed subject."

"I'm reopening it, Mntt. I've worried sick night after night."

"We'll talk about it after the game," he said wearily and the old anger grew large in his chest. Why this again!

"All right, Matt." She kissed him lightly and the sweet taste of lipstick was on his face as he watched her trim figure fade into the crowd, her shoulders straight and defiant.

That was the trouble—she was so stubborn. He threw his shoe against the locker door and Joe Crowder, the first baseman, stared, but didn't say anything. Matt jerked his tie off savagely and glowered at the wall.

They had married less than a year and it had been the same story since spring training. He had met Mary at the USO in Frisco, and she waited until he returned from the Pacific. Sure he had been lucky to get her. Or was it lucky to marry a girl with a cool million?

The cheers of the crowd that greeted the Red Legs when they poured out of the clubhouse was music to his ears. Here were his people—the fans. Rich and poor, they had one consuming interest and he shared that interest. Baseball was king in this square of grass circled by stands and myriads of faces. Mary would be in the box by first base and he glanced upward from his position at second and she waved. Matt smiled and then concentrated on batting practice.

He fielded a hot one and his rocket arm sent the ball into Joe Crowder's gaping glove at first. A fan yelled above the rumble of noise "Atta boy, Matt, boy," and Matt felt better. He was a star and had been a star before the war. Now in mid-season he had regained his form and his bat was still a fearsome weapon. Life was rosy, but yet it wasn't. Mary wanted him to give up the game and become a vice-president in her father's bank, one of the largest on the Coast.

The game rocked along as a pitcher's duel and Rankin, the manager kept calling for runs, but the Greenie hurler was at top form. Matt worked a fast double play in the top of the eighth to nip a Greenie rally and the stands went wild. He glanced up to the box and his heart was heavy—Mary was sitting and there was no elation. Instead, she was looking at the wildly cheering fans as if they were insane.

The Red Legs needed this win to move into first place, but the outlook was dim when the first two batters swung three times and then came back to the dugout with black anger twisting their faces. Matt chose his bat and took his place at the plate.

Mary was still on his mind and he watched the first ball slant in and faintly heard the umpire call a strike. She had been happy at first, but now all she talked of was quitting baseball. As if the game wasn't all right. Baseball was his passion, the element that sent his blood rushing in pulsing surges whenever he heard the crack of a bat or the thud of a ball in a glove. But she thought it degrading!

The next pitch was a strike and Matt gave the bill of his cap a jerk and leaned closer. Slow burning anger boiled up then and he was eager for the next throw. He wanted to hit it with everything he had, wanted to hurt the ball because he was hurt. It came and he swung.

The solid crack of the bat told the fans and they rose as one to cheer. Matt looked over his shoulder after touching second and grinned. A home run and the ball game. The hysterical cheers was music to his ears. He noticed the two girls sitting next to Mary, on their feet and cheering.

Mary was waiting for him at the door to the clubhouse and he wanted to hear her say it was a good hit, but her face was clouded in thought. She took his arm and they walked to the gate. A mass of humanity met Matt, and he had to halt. He autographed the ball and then books, tickets, and anything else they shoved into his hands.

Finally he got through the mob and Mary was breathing heavy as she straightened her hat. "I was afraid for a moment they were going to trample us." Her eyes opened with horror when a horde of young boys crowded around the car.

"That's Matt Johnson, all right. Boy did you see that hit."

THERE'S 538 POUNDS OF HIM—Biggest man arrested at Springfield, Ill., in many a day was George Ziller, (left), who tips scales at 538 pounds. He was released after questioning on bribery count.

GIANT PINE CUT — This giant red pine is a rarity in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, where it was cut. Having reached this great size in a swamp where it attracted no attention, the tree is shown here finally being sawn up by Mr. O. M. George, of South Stukely, and his daughter Joyce. The diameter of the tree was 4 ft. 6 in. and the branches produced three cords of sugar wood.

"Hi, Matt. Gee that was swell playing today."

Matt grinned and said, "Thanks". A tousle-haired boy standing on Mary's side turned a freckled nose to the boy standing beside him. "Boy!" he murmured in awe. "Matt Johnson. That's what I want to be. Abe, I want to be a ball player like Matt."

"Me too," the boy named Abe piped and grinned at Mary. "Hi Mrs. Johnson—you are Mrs. Johnson?"

"Yes," Mary said softly, "I'm Mrs. Johnson."

They ate dinner at the Triumph Grill and conversation was sparse. Matt stared fixedly at his steak and wished there was a solution. He wasn't happy, not with Mary feeling this way. It looked like a choice—Mary, or baseball. He knew it would be Mary, but he loved baseball. The bank would drive him crazy. If only she could understand!

As he paid the check he heard a man at a nearby table saying to a woman in a turban, "That's Matt Johnson, one of the greatest second basemen in the game. That guy is a credit to the game and to the country. Really a clean sportsman and the idol of a million kids..."

He took Mary's arm and they departed. He didn't want to hear more. In the car he made up his mind. It would be better to break with the game now than later. In another month he knew he wouldn't be able to do it. He knew it because he knew himself.

"Mary... about baseball..." She put her finger over his lips and kissed his cheek. "I've been a fool, darling. A selfish fool. I realized it when you hit the home run and when the fans wanted your autograph. And the way they cheered. Those boys by the car, what they said and the man in the grill. You can't leave baseball, Matt. You are baseball."

SELECTED RECIPES

BUTTERMILK BISCUITS

Use buttermilk or sour milk instead of sweet milk in making Baking Powder Biscuits. It takes a little more because buttermilk is thicker. And add soda to the flour, baking powder, and salt.

For large recipe, add ½ teaspoon soda; use 1½ to 1¾ cups buttermilk. For half recipe, add ¼ teaspoon soda; use ¾ to ¾ cup buttermilk.

FLUFFY MOCHA FROSTING

Sift together 4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar, 3¼ tablespoons Baker's Breakfast Cocoa, and ¼ teaspoon salt.

Cream ½ cup butter. Add part of sugar mixture gradually, blending well.

Add remaining sugar mixture, alternately with ¼ cup strong coffee (about), until of right consistency to spread. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Makes enough to cover top and sides of two 9-inch layers or top and sides of 13x9x2-inch cake.

GARDEN NOTES

Be Prepared

Experts advise being on a close look-out for damage by insects or diseases. If one is not watchful much of the garden will be wiped out before defensive forces can be mobilized. It is a good plan to have poisons on hand either for dusting or spraying. The best protection of all, of course, is a healthy garden, one planted from good seed and well cultivated and growing. Weeds not only are an eyesore but they harbor insects and diseases. For most bugs a good commercial spray or dust, easily applied with a cheap sprayer outfit or shaken on from a porous bag will soon bring things under control. The important thing, agree those who know, is to get the counter measures started at the first sign of trouble.

Not Too Late To Start

It is never too late, at least until late June in most parts of Canada, to start a garden. With favorable weather or the use of a hose there is plenty of growth still ahead. Using well-started plants set out now there should be plenty of bloom with flowers and, of course, vegetable planting should still be going on. In some areas, indeed, it is hardly too soon to set out such things as petunias, zinnias, sweet-scented stocks, cosmos and other annual flowers which have been started in a greenhouse, cold frame or window box. Among the vegetables in this same category will be cabbage, tomatoes, head lettuce, peppers, etc. In seeds it is not a bit too early for the main crop of turnips and there is still time for corn, beans, carrots, beets, melons, cucumbers, squash, etc.

Growth will be hurried along with a little extra water during dry weather, with fertilizer applied carefully and, above all, with vigorous cultivation to keep down weeds and pulverize the soil.

Short Cuts

The experienced gardener knows many short cuts to hurry growth along. In dry weather he will if at all possible soak the gardens and lawns once a week. Where no hose is available he will have things like lettuce, tomatoes and beans close to the house or pump so that they can be watered with the minimum of inconvenience. He also knows that weeds are moisture-robbing and these he will keep removed so that the vegetables wanted get all the moisture that nature provides. A weekly cultivation equals a shower because it tends to conserve moisture and a small dose of commercial fertilizer is equivalent to another.

FARM ELECTRICITY

Only 16.1 per cent. of Canadian farms is served with electricity. The percentage varies from a high of 35 per cent. in Ontario to a low of 0.21 per cent. in Saskatchewan. Ontario consumes 79.75 per cent. of the power used on Canadian farms. These figures, states the Agricultural Institute Review, indicate that there is great scope for further development and application of electric power to Canadian farms.

Mounties To Revive Famous Musical Ride

REGINA.—The 45-cost-black steeds gambolling on the prairie near the historic Royal Canadian Mounted Police barracks at Regina herald revival of the Mounties' famed musical ride.

Since 1939 the spotless trappings of the precision, group-riding performers who have thrilled audiences in New York and San Francisco as well as many Canadian centres, have hung idle in the saddlery room of the 64-year-old barracks.

But with recent bolstering of the war-depleted R.C.M.P. ranks close to the authorized 3,544, horsemanship is expected to become again an important part of training for the force.

Equitation is not yet a feature of the tough six-months' course being taken at the largest police training establishment in Canada by some 170 rookies, the majority veterans in their early 20's.

The recent arrival of the horses—all black and at least 15 hands two inches—from the R.C.M.P. remount depot in the southwestern ranchlands of Saskatchewan brings the forecast from oldtimers, however, that mettle of recruits will again be tested at the gallop.

The fledgling's curriculum, which includes one hour of intensive physical training every day, stresses criminal and federal law and court procedure. They learn to fight crime with typewriter and microscope as well as to control nature in the form of fire and crowds.

With the possibility that he might be called on to repair any form of vehicle from a motor toboggan to an aircraft the recruit receives a grounding in motor maintenance.

The rigid physical tests required before initial engagement are followed by written examinations at the middle and end of the course, which has attracted men from all parts of Canada.

At the end of a successful training period, the recruits receive their traditional red coats and riding outfits and may be posted to all parts of Canada, including Arctic posts or office duties at Ottawa.

British Oversize Automobile Rejected

LONDON.—British automobile manufacturers and the motor industry advisory council have rejected an impractical proposal to produce a car larger than standard British makes suitable for export abroad.

Supply Minister John Wilmot said. Answering a question in the House of Commons, Wilmot said the suggestion had been carefully examined but introduction of this new type would cause too much dislocation in present circumstances.

CARD OF THANKS

The Lions Club would like to extend a hearty vote of thanks to every family that helped to billet the University students in the chorus here last Saturday night. The chorus arrived two hours late and then made several changes in the list that had been sent to us earlier, ten of them being unable to come. A few homes gracious enough to offer hospitality were not needed and we regret that all of them were not notified early enough to prevent inconvenience.
